Introduction

The Journal of the Association

The Australian Political Studies Association was founded in 1952; it became an 'Australasian' Association in 1965. Since 1966 it has regularly published a journal, entitled Politics from its foundation until the middle of 1990, and now entitled the Australian Journal of Political Science (AusJPS). The first issue of AusJPS was numbered vol.25, no.2. The journal's inception and early days owed a great deal to the energy and intellectual breadth of the late Henry Mayer (1919–91). From 1956–65, Mayer edited the predecessor of the journal: APSA News: Bulletin of the Australian Political Studies Association.

The editors of the journal have been:

1966–69	Henry Mayer, P.D. Marchant, Douglas McCallum
1969–70	Henry Mayer, Owen Harries
1971–75	Henry Mayer
1976–81	Dean Jaensch
1982–87	Patrick Weller
1987–90	Marian Simms

(In 1990 the editorial functions were split between an editor and a managing editor)

1990–	Editor: Ian McAllister
	Managing editor: David W. Lovell

The journal has been indexed intermittently since 1966. The Publications Committee of APSA, which authorised the present Index, foresees the possibility of an up-to-date cumulative index of the AusJPS being sent to subscribers on a more regular basis—perhaps every five years.

Features of this Index

We have tried to make this Index as useful as its predecessors. It differs from them, however, in expanding the number of categories into which the journal's contributions have been divided, and in the depth to which this material has been presented.

There are seven major categories into which we have placed the information, which correspond to the seven major sections in this volume:

Articles*
Research Notes
Review Essays*
Debates
Book Reviews*
Book Notes
Documents

Within three of these seven categories (those starred above), material is listed in two ways: by author, and by title of article or author of book reviewed. Occasional borderline cases of categorisation arose, but they tended to defy simple solutions. In such cases, we have been creative, idiosyncratic or ad hoc, depending on your perspective. It should be noted that multi-authored articles and books are listed only by the surname of the first author, even though the other authors are included in the listing.

Treatment of 'Books Received'

This Index does not, as a rule, list 'Books Received', but we have spent some time considering borderline cases. We have omitted indexing many books which, we felt, were listed by virtue of having been received. Books are mentioned only where they have been reviewed in some form. We have also omitted reference to many of the books mentioned by Henry Mayer, except where he wrote something substantive about them. Where included, they are classified as Book Notes. (In the 1981 Index, many of these books were included in the Book Review section, but we concur with the introduction to that volume: 'the increase in the number of items surveyed by Professor Mayer made this [indexing] impracticable for IX and successive volumes'.)

Treatment of Special Issues

AusJPS has, from the beginning of 1991, been published three times a year, in March, July and November. Politics was published twice a year, in May and November. However, special issues of Politics were sometimes produced—as monographs—and replaced an issue. There have been three such issues:

1973—Labor to Power, edited by Henry Mayer
1977—The Politics of 'New Federalism', edited by Dean Jaensch
1980—Responsible Government in Australia, edited by Patrick Weller and Dean Jaensch

We have treated these special issues/monographs for the purpose of this Index as if they were regular issues of the journal, and we have numbered them as such:

1973—vol.8, no.1
1977—vol.12, no.2
1980—vol.15, no.2

General Remarks

An Index such as this provides much material for reflection about the course of the Association and its journal over the last twenty six years, and about the state of the discipline of political science in Australia. It lists more than 570 articles; more than 1500 books reviewed in one way or another; and more than 250 books noted.

A glance at these pages suggests that over the life of the journal there has been a growing stress on the inclusion of full-length articles, rather than shorter notes, and a tendency to mention books received only when they are reviewed. With its increasingly international focus and feel, there is nevertheless a certain sadness that playful titles will probably no longer appear in its pages: titles such as 'Fluffy Wuffy, Billy Big Ears and the Pin-Up Boy' and 'Getting at Gough through Supertonk'.

Marian Sawer, reviewing the second Index ('The Contents of Politics 1966–1978', Politics 16:1, May 1981, pp.81–2), remarked upon the gender imbalance of contributions to the journal. Our impression is that her remarks remain no less valid now. She also referred to the fact that, until that time, certain major books had not been reviewed in Politics—among them, John Rawls' A Theory of Justice. We can say that Rawls has still not received his review, though his reputation has not suffered because of it. There has, however, been a determined attempt to increase the numbers of book reviews in AusJPS, and in the areas of political theory and international relations in particular.

Thanks
In the production of this volume we have received much help from our Departmental colleagues, whom we should like to thank formally. Beverley Lincoln and Shirley Ramsay, in particular, gave assistance in entering data.

Australian Journal of Political Science is the official journal of the Australasian Political Studies Association. It publishes articles on all aspects of politics.

The journal aims to:

- present academic assessment of important theoretical and empirical issues in the study of politics;
- contribute to contemporary debates about controversial issues;
- present overviews and evaluations of contemporary political events, in Australasia and internationally.

Australian Journal of Political Science also publishes research notes, which report on ongoing research projects, research designs and preliminary findings. The journal has an extensive book review section, including review essays in addition to shorter reviews.

Australasian Political Studies Association

The aim of the Association is to promote the development of political studies. Membership is open to anyone holding an appointment in political science or allied subjects in a University or University College in Australia or New Zealand. Other persons whose participation in the activities of the Association is likely, in the opinion of the Executive, to be advantageous to political studies may be admitted to membership. Annual membership fees (1992) are: $A60, or $NZ70 (students and retired persons: $A20, or $NZ25).

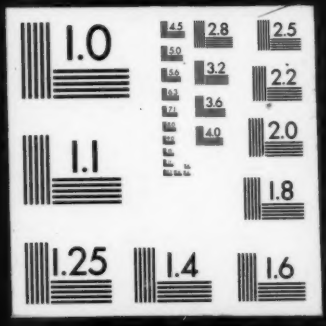

The Association holds an annual conference, usually in September each year, at a university in Australia or New Zealand. An Annual General Meeting of the membership of the Association is held during the Annual Conference to elect the office bearers of the Association.

In addition to publishing the Australian Journal of Political Science, which appears three time a year, the Association also publishes the APSA Newsletter, which appears five times a year. Members also receive occasional publications, such as the Essay Writing and Style Guide for Politics and the Social Sciences, as well as a Directory of Australasian Political Scientists, free of charge.

Enquiries about the Association and applications for membership should be directed to The APSA Secretary, Politics Department, Australian Defence Force Academy, Canberra ACT 2600, Australia.
